WELCOME TO FACTS & FIGURES 2019

Danish films did exceptionally well at cinemas last year. The domestic market share was 30%, landing Denmark in fourth place among European nations.

Audiences were particularly thrilled about Christoffer Boe's crime film The Purity of Vengeance, Ole Bornedal's biopic The Way to Mandalay and Bille August's literary adaptation A Fortunate Man, which were the most popular theatrical releases of all last year. Three ambitious, very different films that succeeded in merging quality and audience appeal.

A number of strong low-budget films by first-time directors made a mark in 2018, both domestically and internationally. The trend was most sharply defined by Gustav Möller's The Guilty, supported by the New Danish Screen talent development scheme. Winning an audience award at Sundance and raves from moviegoers and critics alike, the film ended the year by being shortlisted for a Foreign Language Oscar.

Cinemagoers went in large numbers to watch Danish films in 2018. The year also saw a new political Film Agreement, setting the course for the next five years.

The playing field for Danish films in the years to come has been laid out in the new Film Agreement, which was passed in November 2018 and sets the framework for public funding in the 2019-2023 period.

With a stable financial framework of about DKK 560m (EUR 75m) annually, the Film Agreement proves that there continues to be wide political support for developing Danish cinema. We can look forward to less red tape in the funding system, while the Agreement also strengthens Denmark's two regional film funds, ensuring the inclusion of stories from all over the country. Finally, the Agreement emphasises talent as an important driving force in Danish film.

The Danish Film Institute in the coming years will concentrate on strengthening the cultural significance of Danish films to audiences, keeping abreast of digital developments and, not least, inspiring an even greater diversity of voices and stories in Danish film.

MARKET SHARES & ADMISSIONS

Danish films had a strong year at the box office in 2018, in a market dominated by US releases, although these saw a slight drop in ticket sales compared to previous years. Admissions to local fare went up 46% over 2017, for a national market share of 30%, compared to 21% in 2017 and 2016. Looking at the big picture, Denmark landed in fourth spot on the EU top 10.

FEATURE FICTION / SUPPORTS

The DFI administers three main subsidy schemes for production: the Commissioner Scheme for artistically innovative films, the Market Scheme for films with broad audience appeal, and the Minor Co-production Scheme. The low-budget initiative, running from 2015-2018, was aimed at films by new talents working on a shoestring budget.

PUBLIC SERVICE / SUPPORTS

Through the Public Service Fund, the DFI supports TV documentaries and TV drama on commercial channels. The aim is to give broadcasters the opportunity to produce high-quality, risk-taking public service content. In 2018, 9 documentary and 13 drama projects were supported, including companies HBO, Cartoon Network and SBS.

Danish Film Institute

The Danish Film Institute (DFI) supports the development, production and distribution of Danish films and offers funding for international co-productions.

Support programmes extend to digital games, film education and promotion at international film festivals. A minimum of 25 percent of all subsidies are earmarked for children and youth films.

Situated in central Copenhagen, the DFI houses the national Cinematheque and also includes a library, a stills and posters archive and a film studio for children to explore the craft of filmmaking.

The DFI manages the film archives and runs a streaming website for Danish shorts and documentaries at filmcentralen.dk.
